

Acknowledgments

There are numerous people to who I am indebted, especially the many patients who have encouraged me to write about my new voice techniques so that others can also benefit and who have allowed their stories to be told. In addition, I am grateful to the celebrity patients who have allowed their names to be mentioned over the years. Their public acknowledgement of voice help has alerted an unknowing public to this field and has encouraged individuals with voice problems to seek assistance. I also want to express the extreme gratitude to patients with spastic dysphonia and other troubled voices who have told their stories using their real names in some cases.

I must make note here of the individuals from different disciplines, especially physicians, psychologists, speech pathologists, teachers of singing, and former patients, who have referred patients to me over the years. Specific colleagues whose assistance, friendship, or guidance have given me the support and faith I needed in order to develop in my field are: Virgil Anderson, Ph.D., Robert West, Ph.D., Lee Travis, Ph.D., Joel Pressman, M.D., Henry J. Rubin, M.D., John Snidecor, Ph.D., Elise Hahn, Ph.D., Nobuhiko Isshiki, M.D.

Thanks to Marcia and Melvin Powers of Wilshire Book Company for their assistance and suggestions.

I wish to especially thank April Allen for her cover design, excellent word processing skills and for her endless patience.
